CONGRESS GETS LONG REPORT ON WRA ACTIVITIES

Normal Homes And Jobs Sought For Friendly Oriental Citizens

TROUBLE MAKERS HELD

Only Small Minority Of 113,000 Nip-Americans To Be Restricted

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14—President Roosevelt today reported to congress that the government has begun segregating in a single camp persons of Japanese ancestry in the United States who are disloyal to this country.

At the same time, the President reported, the War Relocation Authority is redoubling its efforts to relocate "into normal homes and jobs in communities throughout the United States," but outside the west coast evacuated areas, American citizens of Japanese ancestry who are of proven loyalty to the United States.

The President made his report to congress in submitting a lengthy statement from the office of War Relocation Director James F. Byrnes covering the activities of the War Relocation Authority since its establishment. The report was requested by congress.

Prison Camp Set Up

The segregation center for those definitely loyal to Japan has been established at Tule lake in northwestern California, the report stated. Movements of the segregants was begun early this month.

Approximately 70 "trouble-makers" in the Japanese relocation centers have been confined at Leupp, Arizona.

The report stated that it is not yet possible to determine how many disloyal persons will be segregated in the Tule lake center, but they will include 6,300 persons who have requested repatriation or expatriation to Japan.

Approximately 113,000 persons have been taken out of the Pacific coast area, but only a "small minority" of them will be subject to the new restrictions governing the Tule lake center.

"It is established that the disloyal persons among the evacuees constitute but a small minority, and that the great majority of evacuees are loyal to the democratic institutions of the United States," the President's report stated.

Approximately 96,000 evacuees are in 10 relocation centers in Utah, Arizona, Colorado, Wyoming, Arkansas, Idaho and California. About two-thirds of these are American citizens. Approximately 10,000 others have been permitted to establish themselves outside these centers. Five thousand Container Corporation of America plant, one of Circleville's chief industries, gave the "Back the Attack" War Bond drive a boost Tuesday when it subscribed $25,000 to the campaign for $1,000,000.

The purchase of bonds was the first large one reported during the early phases of the campaign. Clark Will, general chairman of the Third War Loan drive, said he had been promised support from other leading Circleville industrial plants.

Norbert Cochran, general manager of the Container Corporation plant, said the subscription is in line with a general policy undertaken by the company's head offices in Chicago. "Rather than make the company's investment in Chicago so that only the Chicago War Loan committee would receive credit for a big purchase, the company decided to allocate certain amounts to each of its plants."

MASKED MARVEL MURDER STILL BAFFLES POLICE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 14—Detectives seeking clues to the slayings of David Gaspar G. Bacon, Jr., "masked marvel" of the movies, were as baffled today as any audience attending the thriller serial in which the actor played the title role.

The meager clues uncovered by an autopsy surgeon and the police department's top investigators as they probed the murder of the "masked marvel," scion of a Massachusetts family prominent both socially and politically, served only to deepen the mystery.

The actor stumbled from his tiny car Sunday and bled to death in a Venice beachfield.

The very nature of the wound, eventually bringing death through hemorrhage of the left lung, indicated it might have been inflicted a considerable time before Bacon's British-made automobile was seen careening erratically from curb to curb, prior to its final plunge into the sea.

Dr. Frank R. Webb, county autopsy surgeon who fixed the cause of death, added further to an already puzzling lack of clues of any struggle. He found that the nearly nude body of the 29-year-old actor bore no other marks or bruises. Detective Lieuts. Harry Fremont and Lloyd Hurst, seeking vainly to track Bacon's movements after he left his Skyline Hollywood home, Castle Hill, said they were working on a tentative theory that Bacon was slain by a hitch-hiker or chance acquaintance as he leaned forward in the tiny car, perhaps to close a door.

Organized effort put forth by some of Pickaway county's leading livestock men paid dividends Tuesday to all local hog producers when the Office of Price Administration announced a ceiling of $14.75 per hundredweight on porkers sold in this county.

Livestock men estimate that $50,000 a year has been put into the pockets of the county's pork producers because of a campaign carried through to successful completion by an Ohio committee of which Harry J. Briggs, manager of the Pickaway county Livestock Cooperative association, was a leading member.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

Well, Wayne Morse and the War Labor Board handed down a little decision the other day which didn't get much attention.

It was to the effect that when the WLB awards a closed shop contract it's kind of a pay-off for that no-strike pledge which Bill Green and Phil Murray are forever waving the flag about.

Most labor I know and which hasn't any intention of striking anyway, being good, patriotic citizens with sons and brothers and friends in the battle, is getting a little tired of hearing about the no-strike pledge.

There's nothing intensely patriotic in forever yapping about how you aren't going to let down your own flesh and blood or anyway your own countrymen. And why should you?

Where labor is treated decently, labor reacts decently and Bill and Phil don't have to keep simpering up to the White House lisp "we ain't gonna strike... we ain't gonna strike!"

And where labor ISN'T treated decently, Bill and Phil can save their breath and their no-strike pledge because there's going to be trouble and they aren't going to be consulted.

Morse should know that. He's seen it enough times so far. And he ought to know too, that decent labor isn't looking for any hand-outs or favors for staying on the job when there's no reason to get off it.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 14—Italian fleet units totalling more than 67 vessels have put into port at the British Mediterranean island of Malta. Allied officials confirmed today.

The vessels include five Italian battleships, eight cruisers, 19 submarines, 27 destroyers, six corvettes, one auxiliary cruiser, the hospital ship Toscana and smaller craft.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14—Japan's Domei News Agency reported today that the luxury liner Conte Verde and the Italian gunboat Lepanto had been scuttled by their crews at Shanghai following the signing of Italy's armistice with the Allies.

Domei, in reporting the seizure of Italian vessels in Japanese and Japanese-controlled waters, also asserted that 17 other Italian vessels, including six warships, were damaged in apparent attempts by their crews to prevent them from falling into Japanese hands.

The Domei announcements were reported by the Office of War Information.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14—Plans for an Anglo-American-Soviet meeting of foreign ministers are understood to be nearing completion today.

The preliminary phase of the discussions which have been held in London to arrange for the meeting has been completed. The proposed date and location of the conference is now before the three governments concerned for approval.

It is expected that the meeting will be held next month, possibly in London.

Ivan Maisky, Soviet deputy foreign commissar, who participated in the preliminary discussions in London, is understood to be returning to Moscow to consult his government on the final arrangements for the conference.

UNDER the watchful eyes of the Allied Mediterranean chiefs, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower (arrow, top picture) and Admiral Sir Andrew Browne Cunningham (behind Eisenhower), part of the Italian fleet arrives off the British island of Malta to join the Allied sea forces. Below, General Eisenhower, commander-in-chief of all Allied forces in the Mediterranean, and Admiral Cunningham, naval chief, talk over the Italian surrender and acquisition of the Italian ships. At latest reports, 67 units of the Italian fleet were in Allied hands. Included among the warships were the 35,000-ton battleships Italia and Vittorio Veneto, the 24,000-ton Andrea Doria and Dandolo and the 23,000-ton Giulio Cesare. They are all at the port of Valletta.

CONSERVATIVES RULE CONGRESS

Administration, However, May Rule On Military, Foreign Policy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 14—Congress reconvened today with conservatives still holding the reins on domestic issues, but under circumstances likely to give the administration the upper hand on matters affecting military and foreign policy.

The fight on "bureaucracy" which the 78th congress launched with unprecedented vigor when it convened last January appears certain to continue unabated. Most members who have returned to Washington from two months with their constituents seem more determined than ever to trim bureaucratic budgets, powers and prerogatives.

On the other hand, the recess which started in July, has greatly increased the probability that congress will adopt some sort of a resolution committing this nation to participation in an organization of nations for the prevention of future wars.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders are throwing their support to administration efforts to obtain a clear-cut understanding on post-war foreign policy, and, so certain are they of success, that they are now engaged only in an ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 14—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower announced today that reserves are being rushed to the Salerno bridgehead, where American troops are fighting a bitter struggle against the Nazis.

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, Sept. 14—Competent military authorities in Washington today said that there was no confirmation of German claims that there was any evacuation of British or American troops in the Salerno area nor is any contemplated. The same sources said that no information had been received from Allied headquarters to substantiate Nazi reports that 10,000 Americans had been taken prisoners or that the United States had suffered 10,000 casualties.

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, Sept. 14—The Navy announced today that a modern submarine has been lost, presumably in the Pacific, while two U. S. subchasers have been bombed and sunk in the Mediterranean. The submarine overdue and presumed to be lost is the U. S. Grenadier, which was completed on May 1, 1941, at the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard. Most of the crew was also presumed to have been lost. An undersea vessel of the Grenadier type normally carries about 65 officers and men.

Bitter and desperate fighting against "heavy odds" was waged by the hard-pressed United States Fifth Army at the beachhead of Salerno in Italy today.

In Washington, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox said that the American forces which landed at Salerno were in a "good stiff fight" and said the Salerno invasion marked the most hotly contested landing that United States troops have yet made.

Nazi military spokesmen claimed the Salerno struggle had become "hopeless" for the Allies and Exchange Telegraph Company of England compared the battle with the ill-starred British landing at Gallipoli in the first World War which ended in disaster.

Yanks Lack Room

The Fifth Army has six miles in depth in which to manoeuvre. It is thus unable to absorb counterattacks with ease. Enemy artillery still covers the beaches in the Salerno sector, which complicates disembarkation of reinforcements and hampers communications.

Militarily, the point has now been reached which always must be anticipated and expected in amphibious operations where invading forces, with no time to strengthen their beachheads, must expand against formidable opposition and gain room in which to manoeuvre.

It was thought likely that Allied tanks are now ashore, although in all probabilities the Americans and British remain outnumbered as regards armored strength.

Possession of Salerno remains disputed at all points of the battle-front and every scrap of evidence in London emphasized that one of the heaviest and closest battles of the war is developing. The Germans are extremely well established on the ground and in the air as well.

Bitter and desperate fighting against "heavy odds" was waged by the hard-pressed United States Fifth Army at the beachhead of Salerno in Italy today.

In Washington, Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox said that the American forces which landed at Salerno were in a "good stiff fight" and said the Salerno invasion marked the most hotly contested landing that United States troops have yet made.

Nazi military spokesmen claimed the Salerno struggle had become "hopeless" for the Allies and Exchange Telegraph Company of England compared the battle with the ill-starred British landing at Gallipoli in the first World War which ended in disaster.

Yanks Lack Room
The Fifth Army has six miles in depth in which to manoeuvre. It is thus unable to absorb counterattacks with ease. Enemy artillery still covers the beaches in the Salerno sector, which complicates disembarkation of re-inforcements and hampers communications.

Militarily, the point has now been reached which always must be anticipated and expected in amphibious operations where invading forces, with no time to strengthen their beachheads, must expand against formidable oppositions and gain room in which to manoeuvre.

It was thought likely that Allied tanks are now ashore, although in all probabilities the Americans and British remain outnumbered as regards armored strength. Possession of Salerno remains disputed at all points of the battle-front and every scrap of evidence in London emphasized that one of the heaviest and closest battles of the war is developing. The Germans are extremely well established on the ground and in the air as well.

periods of combat in the air, but it remains possible without nearby land bases to maintain the continuous fighter cover that would screen the Americans completely. As a result, the Germans are able to break in through the Allied air lines, strafe the beaches and bomb forward positions.

Well-informed circles emphasized the probability the battle is exacting a heavy toll, with severe casualties on both sides.

Fighter Planes Active
The Fifth Army is receiving up to 500 fighter planes for air cover daily, and attack planes carried out 800 sorties over the Naples-Salerno area throughout yesterday alone.

Without pause British units and the American slammed into the grimly resisting Nazis in an effort to get a solid foothold on the heights beyond the beachheads. In the heights lie the main enemy strongholds in the center of well-emplaced positions.

The Germans in turn drove repeatedly against the Allied positions in an effort to shatter them.

Terrific Battle
Fighting of terrific intensity was centered along the banks of a river south of Salerno where high ground slopes close to the sea.

Evidence that the German high command views the situation there as serious and is intent upon holding its positions at all costs was reflected in the presence there of elements of the hard-bitten Hermann Goering 15th and 16th Panzer divisions.

Observers declared that the Nazis appeared to be gambling everything in a showdown battle at Salerno, throwing into the fighting every available man and weapon.

Against this assemblage of striking power, including armor, the Americans and British incessantly attempted to press their task of piercing into the German positions on the heights overlooking the beachhead plain. From their positions, the Nazis hammered back at the Allies with a constant barrage from 88-millimeter guns.

Edge For Huns
The greatest factor in the enemy's favor is that the Americans and British are down on the Italian coast, commanded by the high ground used by the Germans for defensive positions.

Air superiority, however, is enjoyed by the Allies although the Nazi fliers have the advantage of short flights from their bases to the battle area which permit them to hover over the Salerno region for longer periods of time. Despite this, the Allied aerial umbrella now is regarded as foolproof.

Another bright spot is the fact that the British Eighth Army is hastening northward against virtually no opposition, except that afforded by German demolitions. Yesterday it reached a point some 100 miles below the Fifth Army in the Taranto area, with the Italians manning their own guns against the Germans in the region around the road junction of Gioia, north of the big naval base. Some limited contact with the enemy was made in that region.

The British advance is posing an ever-growing threat against the Germans near Salerno.

In yesterday's air operations, American bombers encountered virtually no resistance on many of their assignments, while in dog-fights over the battle areas, 10 to 120 Nazi planes were shot down.

Fighting in Rome
A London dispatch quoted the United Nations radio at Algiers as saying bitter street fighting between Italians and Germans was in progress in Rome. The report said the Rome street battles were part of mounting Italian resistance against the Germans throughout the country.

London diplomatic circles discounted German assertions that Benito Mussolini is now actively heading a Nazi puppet Italian government in northern Italy. Diplomats in Switzerland believe the former Duce is either dead or the flood of German propaganda concerning him is aimed at "smoking out" information regarding his true whereabouts.

Bryansk Evacuated
Berlin admitted evacuation of Bryansk, vital pivot of the German central and southern fronts in Russia. Word was expected momentarily from Moscow that the Red army had penetrated into the heart of the city, 210 miles southwest of the Russian capital.

The Nazis apparently gave up Bryansk in the same manner as they fled from Orel, Belgorod and Kharkov to escape the encircling grasp of the Red army. Fall of Bryansk was not unexpected since the Soviet high command in its midnight communique disclosed that Russian troops were within two and one-half miles of the center of the city and Soviet artillery was lobbing shells across the Desna river into German positions. COUNTY SCHOOL TEACHERS TO MEET SATURDAY

An interesting program has been arranged for Saturday starting at 9:45 a. m. when teachers of Pickaway county schools gather at the Jackson township building for their only meeting of the year. Because of travel restrictions, no other meeting will be held. Usually, two are conducted.

Speakers will include B. A. Stevens, assistant secretary for research in the Ohio Education association; Delbert Woodford, assistant director of the Ohio department of education, and Miss Gwen Horsman, reading specialist for the Scott, Foresman Co. Music will include group singing of "The Star Spangled Banner," a piano solo by Nell Louise Bumgarner and a trumpet solo by Patty Miller, both of the Jackson township school.

Introduction of new teachers is also planned.

Invocation and benediction will be in the charge of the Rev. Carl L. Kennedy, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Circleville.

the east bank of the Desna over the bodies of 2,000 slain Germans was only one of a score of new Soviet victories in the northern Ukraine and southern front which saw 300 more towns and villages liberated from the weakening Nazi grip.

The Japanese faced disaster in New Guinea. Allied ground forces viciously ended a two-month siege of Salamaua by breaking into that enemy stronghold and pursued fleeing remnants of the enemy garrison toward Lae, 20 miles to the North. Meanwhile other Allied forces pressed closer on Lae from the west and east, ever tightening the ring around 20,000 Nipponese troops now cut off on all sides. Ground operations at Lae were again supported by heavy bombers which poured 49 tons of explosives on shattered Japanese defenses.

A navy announcement elaborating on the one-side Tokyo disclosure of the latest American air raid on Paramushiro, big Jap naval and air base in the northern Kuriles north of Japan, disclosed that the raiders sank or damaged five ships and numerous smaller craft and blasted ground installations. The navy announcement revealed that the Liberator bombers and Mitchells which attacked Paramushiro shot down 10 of 25 intercepting Jap fighting planes. Ten bombers did not return.

COUNTY'S HOG RAISERS SAVED $50,000 TOTAL

market. As a result of the program conducted by Mr. Briggs and his committee central Ohio ceiling was finally placed on an equality with the Chicago market instead of below it. The $50,000 saving is figured from the fact that Pickaway county hog producers alone would have suffered that much loss if the ceiling had been fixed at 15 cents under Chicago.

It is estimated that the county sells 140,000 to 150,000 hogs each year weighing an average of 235 pounds, or a total of approximately 32,000,000 pounds of pork.

The central Ohio committee asked the OPA to set the local price at 10 cents above the Chicago ceiling, quoting figures which proved that over a 10 year period pork prices in Pickaway county alone have averaged five and one-half cents above the Chicago average.

The argument placed before the OPA included a statistical report taken from records of The Circleville Herald which shows hog prices paid during the last decade.

Other Ohio counties which will benefit from the concerted effort made before the OPA include Fayette, Ross, Madison, Fairfield, Greene and Darke. All are rated high as hog producers.

OPA declared that the ceilings would not affect retail prices of pork products.

The ceiling becomes effective October 4.

F. G. Ketter, secretary-manager of the Producers Livestock Cooperative association, pointed out Tuesday in conversation with Mr. Briggs that Ohio farm organizations and the Swine Growers' Association have vigorously and continuously opposed the imposition of live hog ceilings. "However," he said, "if ceilings are to be tried, the Ohio farm groups agreed they should exert their best efforts to see that ceilings for Ohio hog men would be fair when compared with producers of other states."

Full marketing data for the Ohio district was gathered before the committee of which Mr. Briggs was a part went to Washington to confer with OPA and War Food Administration officials.

Members of the committee who carried the appeal from the Ohio farm organizations to the capital included E. C. Darling, director of the Ohio Farm Bureau; Joseph Fichter, master of the Ohio State Grange; B. B. Brumley, president of the Producers Livestock Cooperative association and president of the national organization, also; Walter Sollars, director of the Producers Livestock association; John Dunlap, Sr., of Williamsport, director of the Ohio Swine Breeders' and Feeders' association; R. Q. Smith, manager of the Producers Cooperative association, Cincinnati; Mr. Briggs, representing Pickaway county; Mr. Ketter, and Dr. G. F. Henning, of the department of rural economics of Ohio State university.

TWO CARS DAMAGED IN INTERSECTION CRASH

Much damage was done to the 1938 De Soto coupe belonging to Jacob Roll, Kingston Route 2, in a collision Monday afternoon at Main and Mingo streets with the car of Professor B. F. Finkel of Springfield, Mo. The latter is spending the Summer at his home near East Ringgold.

Both doors on the right side of the Roll car, the fender and the running board were crushed. Mr. Finkel's 1935 Chevrolet sedan was not damaged.

Police reported the accident happened when the traffic light was not operating.

Mr. Roll was driving in front of the Deffenbaugh invalid car which was taking Mrs. Roll from Berger hospital to her home.

Here is what is in prospect:

1. An immediate fight over the scheduled draft of fathers with opponents trying to block it by congressional pressure, but with the administration considering a counter-punch in the form of a presidential recommendation for a total draft of manpower which might persuade congress to settle for the induction of fathers.

2. Two weeks of comparative inactivity in which administration leaders hope that Gen. George C. Marshall and Admiral Ernest King can convince the senate and house military affairs committees that fathers must be called, and plans can be made for adoption of a foreign policy resolution.

3. A tax bill in response to President Roosevelt's request for an additional 12 billion dollars in revenue annually. Most members predict, however, if half the sum in increased taxes is voted the administration will have come off well.

4. Another fight over OPA rationing and pricing policies when the question of subsidies for producers comes up later this year. The issue will come to a head when congress decides whether or not to extend the life of the commodity Credit Corporation beyond its Dec. 31 expiration date.

The imminence of a fight on the drafting of fathers is increased by the fact that the order for their reclassification becomes effective only 16 days hence. To block it, congress will have to work fast.

It is not likely that the question of a foreign policy resolution will be resolved for some weeks. There are resolutions pending in both the senate and house, but there is now talk of redrafting them to avoid any possibility of acrimonious debate.

The local manager said that he had not been informed concerning the total amount being put in War Bonds by the Container Corporation, but indicated that it would reach a large figure, since C. C. of A. has branches in many parts of the country. Each branch is to be assigned a certain amount for investment in War Bonds.

The $25,000 subscription was made through George P. Foresman of the First National bank.

Mr. Will resumed his tabulation Tuesday in an effort to strike a total for the first several days of the War Bond drive. He indicated an announcement concerning the amount subscribed to date would be made Wednesday.

One of the important subdivisions set up under the War Loan committee is that dealing with farm purchases, the chairman declared Tuesday. This subdivision has Russell Palm as its chairman with Lawrence Warner, Harry J. Briggs, Ethel Brobst, John G. Boggs and Turney M. Glick as committee members. Sales in rural sections come under the direct supervision of Lawrence R. Liston, who is vice-chairman of the Pickaway county War Finance committee.

Another vital committee is that in charge of sales to organizations and headed by Harry W. Heffner. Other members of this committee are J. Harold Limback, Dwight L. Steele and Carl C. Leist.

Completion of the Jackson township committee was also announced Tuesday. It includes two units, one representing the North and the other the South. Directing the northern unit will be Howard Newell Stevenson who will have Mary Shortridge, Allan Hoover, J. D. Butt, Frank Reichelderfer and Elizabeth L. Huston. Representing the southern half of the township will be Walter O. Bumgarner, chairman; Lawrence Goodman, Bruce Stevenson, Harry C. Kern, Ellis List, Fred Riggins and Nelson Walters.

INFIDELITY CHARGED IN SOLDIER'S SUIT

Private James E. Smith, assigned to the Army air corps at Denver, Colorado, filed divorce action Tuesday in Pickaway county common pleas court against Mildred Smith, Circleville, charging her with infidelity.

Smith claims that he entered service in September, 1942, was not home on a furlough until June, 1943, and that his wife had a baby September 3. He charges that she has been spending time with other men in her home and elsewhere.

The Smiths have three children. They were married October 17, 1936. The plaintiff asks custody of the children, declaring that he can provide for them.

Several other motorists have made similar reports in the last two weeks.

Much damage was done to the 1933 De Soto coupe belonging to Jacob Roll, Kingston Route 2, in a collision Monday afternoon at Main and Mingo streets with the car of Professor B. F. Finkel of Springfield, Mo. The latter is spending the Summer at his home near East Ringgold.

Both doors on the right side of the Roll car, the fender and the running board were crushed. Mr. Finkel's 1935 Chevrolet sedan was not damaged.

Police reported the accident happened when the traffic light was not operating.

Mr. Roll was driving in front of the Defenbaugh invalid car which was taking Mrs. Roll from Berger hospital to her home.

Here is what is in prospect:

1. An immediate fight over the scheduled draft of fathers with opponents trying to block it by congressional pressure, but with the administration considering a counter-punch in the form of a presidential recommendation for a total draft of manpower which might persuade congress to settle for the induction of fathers.

2. Two weeks of comparative inactivity in which administration leaders hope that Gen. George C. Marshall and Admiral Ernest King can convince the senate and house military affairs committees that fathers must be called, and plans can be made for adoption of a foreign policy resolution.

3. A tax bill in response to President Roosevelt's request for an additional 12 billion dollars in revenue annually. Most members predict, however, if half the sum in increased taxes is voted the administration will have come off well.

4. Another fight over OPA rationing and pricing policies when the question of subsidies for producers comes up later this year. The issue will come to a head when congress decides whether or not to extend the life of the commodity Credit Corporation beyond its Dec. 31 expiration date.

The imminence of a fight on the drafting of fathers is increased by the fact that the order for their reclassification becomes effective only 16 days hence. To block it, congress will have to work fast.

It is not likely that the question of a foreign policy resolution will be resolved for some weeks. There are resolutions pending in both the senate and house, but there is now talk of redrafting them to avoid any possibility of acrimonious debate.

branches scattered throughout the nation," Mr. Cochran said.

The local manager said that he had not been informed concerning the total amount being put in War Bonds by the Container Corporation, but indicated that it would reach a large figure, since C. C. of A. has branches in many parts of the country. Each branch is to be assigned a certain amount for investment in War Bonds.

The $25,000 subscription was made through George P. Foresman of the First National bank.

Mr. Roll resumed his tabulation Tuesday in an effort to strike a total for the first several days of the War Bond drive. He indicated an announcement concerning the amount subscribed to date would be made Wednesday.

One of the important subdivisions set up under the War Loan committee is that dealing with farm purchases, the chairman declared Tuesday. This subdivision has Russell Palm as its chairman with Lawrence Warner, Harry J. Briggs, Ethel Brobst, John G. Boggs and Turney M. Glick as committee members. Sales in rural sections come under the direct supervision of Lawrence R. Liston, who is vice-chairman of the Pickaway county War Finance committee.

Another vital committee is that in charge of sales to organizations and headed by Harry W. Heffner. Other members of this committee are J. Harold Limback, Dwight L. Steele and Carl C. Leist.

Completion of the Jackson township committee was also announced Tuesday. It includes two units, one representing the North and the other the South. Directing the northern unit will be Howard Newell Stevenson who will have Mary Shortridge, Allan Hoover, J. D. Butt, Frank Reichelderfer and Elizabeth L. Huston. Representing the southern half of the township will be Walter O. Bumgarner, chairman; Lawrence Goodman, Bruce Stevenson, Harry C. Kern, Ellis List, Fred Riggins and Nelson Walters.

INFIDELITY CHARGED IN SOLDIER'S SUIT

Private James E. Smith, assigned to the Army air corps at Denver, Colorado, filed divorce action Tuesday in Pickaway county common pleas court against Mildred Smith, Circleville, charging her with infidelity.

Smith claims that he entered service in September, 1942, was not home on a furlough until June, 1943, and that his wife had a baby September 3. He charges that she has been spending time with other men in her home and elsewhere.

The Smiths have three children. They were married October 17, 1936. The plaintiff asks custody of the children, declaring that he can provide for them.

MORE GASOLINE STOLEN

More evidence of gasoline shortage was noted Tuesday by police when they received another report of theft of gasoline from a parked automobile. Charles Edward White, 226 Walnut street, told police that his car was parked in front of his home when all the fuel in it was taken. Several other motorists have made similar reports in the last two weeks.

"BODIES" for BOMBERS

ON OCTOBER 25, 1940—more than a year before Pearl Harbor—U. S. Army Air Corps officials notified us of the urgent need for a vastly increased aircraft production program, and invited us to participate.

Already we were making Army trucks in great number, completing a huge tank arsenal, building field ranges and tent heaters, and making our first studies of anti-aircraft gun manufacture.

Here was another urgent job that had to be tackled at once.

Without waiting to learn what aircraft job would be assigned to us, we provided 600,000 sq. ft. of additional plant space and, from our own personnel, began to select engineering, metallurgical and manufacturing specialists for this new work.

It was just three months after our first meeting with Air Corps officials that we were officially notified our job was to build the complete nose and center fuselage sections for medium bombers including installation of complete mechanical and control systems.

We immediately sent forty of our technicians to a producing aircraft plant where mechanics made intensive analyses of aircraft blueprints covering more than fourteen thousand structural parts.

The materials to be used included aluminum, steel, brass, bronze, plastics, plywood and fabrics.

OVER 14,000 PARTS TO BE FORGED, CAST, STAMPED, MACHINED AND PRECISION-FITTED

Many of the metal parts presented entirely new working characteristics. They required elaborate heat treating processes for the extreme stresses demanded of them. They also presented new problems in the design and use of the dies required to shape them.

Our production and purchasing specialists determined which parts we could subcontract to other companies. As the work progressed, orders were given to 2,255 subcontractors in 309 towns, in 29 states.

Aluminum forgings would be needed in large numbers by us and other manufacturers participating in the expanded aircraft production program. Therefore, we were given the job of building an aluminum forge plant to take care of these requirements. We also prepared at our foundry to produce aluminum castings required for plane manufacture.

Thousands of men and women had to be trained for this new type of work. Women were employed in large numbers and carefully taught drilling, riveting, machining and assembling of aircraft parts. Automobile sheet metal workers, body builders and trimmers were shown how to apply their these men did regular production work and observed, at first hand, the production methods then in use. Our long background in building automobiles and trucks, plus the experience these men gained working with an aircraft manufacturer, enabled us quickly to get under way with the necessary tools and equipment to turn out "bodies" for bombers by quantity production methods.

To help acquaint us in advance with the many kinds of material and operations involved, the Army Air Corps sent us a bomber nose section. Our engineers and master me-

"BODIES" for BOMBERS

ON OCTOBER 25, 1940—more than a year before Pearl Harbor—U. S. Army Air Corps officials notified us of the urgent need for a vastly increased aircraft production program, and invited us to participate.

Already we were making Army trucks in great number, completing a huge tank arsenal, building field ranges and tent heaters, and making our first studies of anti-aircraft gun manufacture.

Here was another urgent job that had to be tackled at once.

Without waiting to learn what aircraft job would be assigned to us, we provided 600,000 sq. ft. of additional plant space and, from our own personnel, began to select engineering, metallurgical and manufacturing specialists for this new work.

It was just three months after our first meeting with Air Corps officials that we were officially notified our job was to build the complete nose and center fuselage sections for medium bombers including installation of complete mechanical and control systems.

We immediately sent forty of our technicians to a producing aircraft plant where these men did regular production work and observed, at first hand, the production methods then in use. Our long background in building automobiles and trucks, plus the experience these men gained working with an aircraft manufacturer, enabled us quickly to get under way with the necessary tools and equipment to turn out "bodies" for bombers by quantity production methods.

To help acquaint us in advance with the many kinds of material and operations involved, the Army Air Corps sent us a bomber nose section. Our engineers and master mechanics made intensive analyses of aircraft blueprints covering more than fourteen thousand structural parts.

The materials to be used included aluminum, steel, brass, bronze, plastics, plywood and fabrics.

OVER 14,000 PARTS TO BE FORGED, CAST, STAMPED, MACHINED AND PRECISION-FITTED

Many of the metal parts presented entirely new working characteristics. They required elaborate heat treating processes for the extreme stresses demanded of them. They also presented new problems in the design and use of the dies required to shape them.

Our production and purchasing specialists determined which parts we could subcontract to other companies. As the work progressed, orders were given to 2,255 subcontractors in 309 towns, in 29 states.

Aluminum forgings would be needed in large numbers by us and other manufacturers participating in the expanded aircraft production program. Therefore, we were given the job of building an aluminum forge plant to take care of these requirements. We also prepared at our foundry to produce aluminum castings required for plane manufacture.

Thousands of men and women had to be trained for this new type of work. Women were employed in large numbers and carefully taught drilling, riveting, machining and assembling of aircraft parts. Automobile sheet metal workers, body builders and trimmers were shown how to apply their skill and experience to the production of bomber parts.

The big nose of the bomber houses the Bombardier, Pilot, Co-Pilot, Navigator and Radio Operator. Nearly all the mechanical and electrical controls are here, while the center section is the bomb carrying space.

If you could look within these sections as the work of assembly goes on, you would see a bewildering network of wires and tubing as well as the structural skeleton of the ship. Every one of these 1963 separate wires and over 1,000 feet of tubes—to say nothing of all the control mechanisms—must operate faultlessly.

In the production of "bodies" for bombers—a new field to Chrysler Corporation—again is demonstrated how our experience in peacetime car and truck production now is being applied to the production of war equipment in quantity... and on time.

HOLY KIEV
OREL, Kharkov, Stalino. Westward rolls the Russian tide and approaches ever nearer Kiev. The capture of hardly any other German-held city would delight the Russians more.
Kiev, "holy Kiev," has been to the Orthodox Russian church member almost what Jerusalem is to the Jew. In the days of czarism 350,000 pilgrims visited it each year, and gazed at the tombs of the monk Nestor who was the first Russian historian, and Ilya Muromets, "the old Cossack," the great hero of Russian popular story.
To have Kiev held by the hated Germans is almost as great a blow as its terrible sack in the 13th century by those predecessors of the Nazis, the cruel Mongol horsemen from Central Asia. Though for much of its history Kiev has been in other hands, Tartar, Lithuanian and Polish, so too has Jerusalem been owned by others than Jews. Kiev has been Russian since 1667, the nation's most valued city today except perhaps Moscow.
And now it looks as if the days of German-ruled Kiev were numbered.

COLLEGE ATTENDANCE
THE colleges have troubles enough now, through losing most of their students to the war.
They will have troubles, too, after the war, but, if President Raymond Walters of the University of Cincinnati is right, troubles of a different sort. President Walters foresees a repetition of the situation after the last war. Then college attendance increased 84 percent, and college authorities were at their wits' end to know what to do about it.
From one point of view, the latter condition is better for the country. It is better from every point of view, if the attendance of hordes of half-prepared youngsters, in numbers with which the college authorities are not prepared to cope, mean, actual, vigorous and widespread interest in education. Such situations are sometimes subject to well-founded doubts. There are too many uneducated or half-educated people with college degrees as it is.
Serious interest in improving the powers of the mind, developing and strengthening the character and increasing intelligent sense of individual responsibility to the community should be the aims of college education. The new seriousness of the young towards citizenship may give the post-war students a stronger purpose and deeper sense of the value of education. There cannot be too many young people with these ideals going to college.

Believe Secrecy Will Shroud Wing Men Unsung Air Heroes
First Confab of "Big Three"
Special to Central Press
WASHINGTON—When and if the Allied "Big Three"—Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin—gather for a momentous war conference, it is a safe bet that the world will hear nothing about it until the talks are concluded and the Soviet battle chief is safe back in Moscow's Kremlin.
Most Washington observers think that Russian Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov established a precedent for secrecy when he was in the United States last year. No word of Molotov's presence was made public until he had returned to Moscow.
Although Churchill's comings and goings to the American continent have been accompanied by considerable fanfare and publicity, capital newsmen kept Molotov's visit secret in the good faith of wartime censorship. White House Secretary Stephen Early finally announced the visit and issued photographs of Molotov's arrival by plane and his greeting by Secretary of State Hull and other American officials.
The Russian foreign commissar stayed a night at the historic old Blair house, across from the executive mansion, and on more than one occasion passersby noted the stocky Soviet official and remarked:
"Who is that man? He looked exactly like pictures of Molotov."
Stalin is thought certain to insist that the same secrecy be accorded any meeting which he may have with Roosevelt and Churchill. Furthermore, such a conference will not be held until the Russian leader has satisfied himself that definite results can be achieved.
There are some observers who think that Stalin might journey to some point within the Soviet borders to meet the Allied chieftains. Others believe he might fly the seas.
If the meeting occurs—and some London sources say that Stalin has definitely agreed to it—it is thought certain that Molotov will

LETTERS PROTEST PAY RAISE
WASHINGTON—Several weeks ago this observer had the temerity to suggest that we revise the low salary of the poor congressman. With living costs up, wages pyramiding, with congressmen facing the problem of maintaining two homes, carting their children all around the country, and spending almost as much on campaign expenses as their annual salary, I suggested that an increase in congressional pay was long overdue and would help to provide better, more efficient congressmen.
Seldom has the resultant storm of mail been so heavy, so scathing and so abusive. The public, if that cross section of mail is any criterion, does not like congress. At $10,000 a year, it considers a congressman overpaid, overstuffed and underdone.
Having lived close to congressmen, and having considered them reasonably conscientious, definitely hard working, and generally patriotic, I was surprised at this deluge of wrath from the people who elect them.
I was also alarmed. You cannot make a democratic system of checks and balances work efficiently if confidence in either the legislature or the executive is undermined. In Germany it was not until the petty blundering of the Reichstag had destroyed public confidence that Hitler came to power. In France it was not until both the Chamber of Deputies and the various French cabinets had sapped government prestige that France fell.
The U. S. A. in my opinion is a long way off from anything like this. Nevertheless, it might be a good idea for the gentlemen who come back to the halls of congress this week to do a little inventory-talking as to what decreases their most important stock-in-trade—public confidence.

WHAT'S WRONG?
Here are a couple of traits which they might think over:
1. The egocentric, cocksure idea that a congressman is above sin, plus the haste of his colleagues to gather around and protect him if someone on the outside raises the whisper of suspicion.
2. Being very vulnerable themselves, the alacrity with which most congressmen rush in to cast the first stone at somebody else.
In other words, before it can heave bricks at an ex-ballet dancer recommended by Civil Service for a government job, congress is going to have to clean out its Augean stables.
Probably nothing has decreased public esteem of congress more than the current travesty by which one of their own members has turned the investigational force of the powerful House of Representatives against the government agency which had the temerity to do its duty and recommend him to the Justice department for criminal prosecution.
The case is complicated and the public at first was slow to catch on. But the case has snow-balled. And now most of the American people fully understand the significance of the manner in which Congressman Eugene Cox of Georgia, a crony of Speaker Sam Rayburn, was able to take a $2,500 check for alleged illegal lobbying with the Federal Communications Commission, and then not only escape prosecution, but get his colleagues to vote $60,000

● ONE OF THE BIG REASONS for U. S. air victories in the southwest Pacific and other parts of the globe is teamwork. United States flyers protect each other when aloft.
Several American aces who have returned home from the battle fronts have given full credit for many of their victories to the valiant, unheralded performance of their "wing men." They admit they would never live to be aces if the wing men did not protect them from surprise attacks from the rear.
The wing men seldom, if ever, break into the headlines. They do not pile up a spectacular record of shooting down Japanese planes. They fly out on the "edge" of the fighting, so to speak, and guard the aces who are in there pouring death and destruction into Tokyo's flyers.
The high rate of Japanese combat plane losses in battle with American pilots are almost too good to be true, but United States flyers say that actually they are even higher than official reports from Washington and the war zone indicate.
According to Washington, the American marksmen since the beginning of the Guadalcanal offensive have averaged five enemy planes shot down for every United States plane lost. In some battles this has been boosted to as high as 20 to 1.
American fighter pilots point out, however, that their reports are checked over carefully and they must actually see a Jap plane disintegrate in the air or crash to the ground or into the sea before they can claim it. Otherwise they are credited with a Jap plane probably destroyed or damaged.
Officials now have gotten over their early fear that American airmen could not keep up the terrific rate of destruction. Combat flyers will tell you that the quality of Jap pilots has deteriorated considerably and their planes now are no real match for the newer and improved types of United States planes. American pilot morale is high, too, because they are given better protective armor and every effort is made to rescue them when their planes are shot down.

DIET AND HEALTH
Science Selects Skyfighters
By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
IN THE article yesterday we reviewed some of the developments in the field of aviation medicine, particularly selecting pilots on their mental qualifications.
There are, of course, many other developments of aviation medicine which have literally made modern military aviation possible.
One of these, of course, is the oxygen supply. The modern military pilot is exposed to altitudes of 30,000 and 40,000 feet, to temperatures of 60 degrees below zero and to speeds of 500 miles an hour. He could not endure these without artificial methods of help.
Use of Oxygen
The use of oxygen is a fairly simple and obvious method of help, but immense improvements in apparatus and in knowledge of application have been made by research workers. At sea level the total atmospheric pressure is 760 mm. of mercury, the oxygen is approximately 21 per cent, and oxygen pressure of the atmosphere, about 159 mm.
At 10,000 feet the oxygen pressure in the lungs has dropped to 65 mm. and at 20,000 feet it has dropped to 40 mm. Oxygen pressure is what keeps us alive. If it falls below a certain level we become first inefficient, then unconscious, and then we die. The aviator is taught to begin to use oxygen at 10,000 feet. About 15,000 feet it is absolutely necessary for efficiency. At 35,000 feet he is inefficient even when breathing 100 per cent oxygen, and above 47,000 feet he will die with 100 per cent oxygen unless he has a pressure cabin or suit.
A related problem is the effect of low barometric pressure per se. At 35,000 feet nitrogen is given off in the blood and gets into the muscles, causing the "bends." It is exactly the same as caisson disease in deep-sea divers: the diver coming from high pressure under sea, if brought up rapidly to the air at sea level, gets the bends for the same reason that the aviator does going from sea level to the low pressure of three miles in the air.
Experiments Constantly Tried
Up to the present there has been devised no practical plan or apparatus for the prevention of the bends in aviators. But experiments are constantly being performed and I am told that at least they can test aviators and find out which ones are likely to get the bends badly.
Visual tests for pilots are, of course, very rigid. One necessity for the pilot is ability to judge distance and this varies greatly with individuals. It requires nearly perfect binocular vision. Distance cannot be accurately judged with one eye.
The equilibrium tests—the Barabaty tests which have been in use for a long time—are principally valuable in teaching a pilot not to rely on his sense of equilibrium. In blind flying the pilot must disregard his sensations and rely on his instruments.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
O. H. S.—Is olive oil beneficial in healing or curing stomach or intestinal ulcers? Is the absence of pain in the stomach evidence that ulcers no longer exist?
Answer: Olive oil is soothing for ulcer, and for that purpose is often used. It is not preventive. Absence of pain indicates that the ulcer is not active, but ulcers notoriously tend to flare up from time to time.
A. B.—Do girls grow after the age of 17? What foods aid the growth of the body?
Answer: Very little, if any, growth usually occurs after the age of 17. No particular foods aid body growth.

ASK ADAM
RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION
WATKINS E. WRIGHT
SYNOPSIS
ADAM NORTH, young bachelor who recently converted and old Linville buggy factory into a war plant, becomes a "fill-in" stand-by for the town's party givers, among them being
SUSAN POTTER, whose husband, Bill, has lately been breaking evening dates to "negotiate" a real estate deal with ALICIA CARTER, a witty, flirtatious widow, Adam, unknowingly, is loved by his secretary,
RUTH MOOREHOUSE, who at present is having difficulty dissuading the affections of
JACK VINTON, a mechanic in the plant, Adam, being aware of Ruth's feelings, is just becoming intrigued with BRENDA LEIGH, who is now enjoying an extended vacation in Linville which she left several years ago to follow a journalistic career in New York City.

YESTERDAY: Susan's new attention to her appearance and acceptance of a dietitian's job in Adam's factory bring about a change of heart with husband Bill, who decides to wind up the Alicia Carter real estate deal in short order. Upon arriving home that night, he suddenly warms heart gets a chilling from Susan when she states she is going out for the evening. Mrs. Platt, one of Linville's social leaders, is producing an amateur play, and Susan is going over to help.
CHAPTER TEN
THAT EVENING, while Bill studied blueprints of small cottages, and while Susan and Brenda made plans with Mrs. Platt, Jack Vinton and Ruth Moorehouse went for a ride. They changed their minds about going to a movie.
"I've been shut up in the office all day," said Ruth. "I'd like to feel the wind against my face. That is, if you've got enough for a drive."
"I have enough to take us as far as the Vaughan highway," said Jack.
"Anyway, enough to get us as far as a cottage I want to show you."
There, it's coming again, Ruth thought; Jack and his talk of marriage. He had told her about the cottage, describing it in glowing terms, and she knew he was going to talk now of how happy they would be in it when they were married and peace had come once more.
Ruth said nothing and tried to relax. As Jack steered the car in and out of Linville's traffic, which was almost cosmopolitan in its denseness, she let her thoughts dwell on many things. But mostly she thought of how she had always wanted a home of her own. Having been an orphan who'd been handed around from relative to relative until she had finished school and become capable of managing herself and her affairs, she had dreamed of being settled in a place she could call her own. And always before her had been the vision of a cottage like that in which Susan and Bill Potter lived. Colorful draperies, soft rugs, the right sort of pictures, and a sunroom, glass enclosed, in which breakfast could be served the year round—the glass said back for warm weather, and closed for cold.
Of course there had always been a husband to share that perfect cottage. Adam, who would love and cherish her. But try as she might, she hadn't been able, during the past two years, to visualize Jack Vinton as that husband. Again and again she had tried, but always the husband resembled Adam North.
"I got my questionnaire late this afternoon," Jack said. "Gosh, but it's a complicated affair."
Ruth looked at him, and suddenly felt fear. How awful for Jack, and thousands of young men like him, so full of health and promise, to be turned into what some people called cannon fodder. And yet, she further thought, she supposed it was as it should be. People had to fight to protect what was nearest right, and she knew that the American way of life was just that. There were many things wrong, maybe, but not so many things wrong with democracies as with some other forms of government. She'd heard Adam discuss it in terms like that, and they had stuck. And yet it was tragic to think that maybe men like Jack, and Peter Platt, and those other Linville boys who were now in the service might be killed or maimed. Certainly there must be something terribly wrong somewhere, when wars kept on happening, even though the world was supposed to have advanced far along the road toward being completely civilized.
She remembered something else Adam had said. The words came back to her even as Jack chatted about his questionnaire and the cottage. "We have gone back to a sort of mechanized primitiveness," Adam had said one day in the office, when he seemed low and discouraged about several matters. "Back in the Stone Age men used big sticks," he had added, "but now we use monsters called tanks, and outrageous birds called bombers."
"Here we are!" said Jack. He brought the car to a stop before a white picket gate. "Isn't it a beauty?"
"Yes," said Ruth softly. "It is!" She sat looking at the fence, the front yard and the cottage. It was small and neat and homey. "I love it," she added.
"Come on," Jack urged, jumping up. "Let's go have a look." He helped Ruth. "Sorry I didn't get the key, but we can look in the windows and explore the acre of land that goes with it."
This they did. The living room was square, with a wide fireplace, and bookshelves built low and generous on either side of the wide mantel. The moonlight was bright, and it did its best to help them, pouring silver into the rooms and reaching even to the farthest corners. They looked into the other rooms, also, and stood for some time beside a small, glass-enclosed porch on the south side of the cottage. Ruth caught her breath when she saw this, for it was as though her dream cottage had suddenly materialized right there before her eyes and nose and face, as her old Aunt Carrie had had a habit of saying.
"Plenty of room in the living room for all my books on engineering and tool-making," said Jack. "And plenty of room here for us to sit and read the Sunday papers." He stepped closer to Ruth, slipped his arm about her slender waist. "Can't you just see Jack, Junior,

HOLY KIEV

OREL, Kharkov, Stalino. Westward rolls the Russian tide and approaches ever nearer Kiev. The capture of hardly any other German-held city would delight the Russians more.

Kiev, "holy Kiev," has been to the Orthodox Russian church member almost what Jerusalem is to the Jew. In the days of czarism 350,000 pilgrims visited it each year, and gazed at the tombs of the monk Nestor who was the first Russian historian, and Ilya Muromets, "the old Cossack," the great hero of Russian popular story.

To have Kiev held by the hated Germans is almost as great a blow as its terrible sack in the 13th century by those predecessors of the Nazis, the cruel Mongol horsemen from Central Asia. Though for much of its history Kiev has been in other hands, Tartar, Lithuanian and Polish, so too has Jerusalem been owned by others than Jews. Kiev has been Russian since 1667, the nation's most valued city today except perhaps Moscow.

And now it looks as if the days of German-ruled Kiev were numbered.

COLLEGE ATTENDANCE

THE colleges have troubles enough now, through losing most of their students to the war.

They will have troubles, too, after the war, but, if President Raymond Walters of the University of Cincinnati is right, troubles of a different sort. President Walters foresees a repetition of the situation after the last war. Then college attendance increased 84 percent, and college authorities were at their wits' end to know what to do about it.

From one point of view, the latter condition is better for the country. It is better from every point of view, if the attendance of hordes of half-prepared youngsters, in numbers with which the college authorities are not prepared to cope, mean, actual, vigorous and widespread interest in education. Such situations are sometimes subject to well-founded doubts. There are too many uneducated or half-educated people with college degrees as it is.

Serious interest in improving the powers of the mind, developing and strengthening the character and increasing intelligent sense of individual responsibility to the community should be the aims of college education. The new seriousness of the young towards citizenship may give the post-war students a stronger purpose and deeper sense of the value of education.
There cannot be too many young people with these ideals going to college.

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—When and if the Allied "Big Three"—Roosevelt, Churchill, Stalin—gather for a momentous war conference, it is a safe bet that the world will hear nothing about it until the talks are concluded and the Soviet battle chief is safe back in Moscow's Kremlin.

Most Washington observers think that Russian Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov established a precedent for secrecy when he was in the United States last year. No word of Molotov's presence was made public until he had returned to Moscow.

Although Churchill's comings and goings to the American continent have been accompanied by considerable fanfare and publicity, capital newsmen kept Molotov's visit secret in the good faith of wartime censorship. White House Secretary Stephen Early finally announced the visit and issued photographs of Molotov's arrival by plane and his greeting by Secretary of State Hull and other American officials.

The Russian foreign commissar stayed a night at the historic old Blair house, across from the executive mansion, and on more than one occasion passersby noted the stocky Soviet official and remarked:

"Who is that man? He looked exactly like pictures of Molotov."

Stalin is thought certain to insist that the same secrecy be accorded any meeting which he may have with Roosevelt and Churchill. Furthermore, such a conference will not be held until the Russian leader has satisfied himself that definite results can be achieved.

There are some observers who think that Stalin might journey to some point within the Soviet borders to meet the Allied chieftains. Others believe he might fly the seas.

If the meeting occurs—and some London sources say that Stalin has definitely agreed to it—it is thought certain that Molotov will

LETTERS PROTEST PAY RAISE

WASHINGTON—Several weeks ago this observer had the temerity to suggest that we revise the low salary of the poor congressman. With living costs up, wages pyramiding, with congressmen facing the problem of maintaining two homes, carting their children all around the country, and spending almost as much on campaign expenses as their annual salary, I suggested that an increase in congressional pay was long overdue and would help to provide better, more efficient congressmen.

Seldom has the resultant storm of mail been so heavy, so scathing and so abusive. The public, if that cross section of mail is any criterion, does not like congress. At $10,000 a year, it considers a congressman overpaid, overstuffed and underdone.

Having lived close to congressmen, and having considered them reasonably conscientious, definitely hard working, and generally patriotic, I was surprised at this deluge of wrath from the people who elect them.

I was also alarmed. You cannot make a democratic system of checks and balances work efficiently if confidence in either the legislature or the executive is undermined. In Germany it was not until the petty blundering of the Reichstag had destroyed public confidence that Hitler came to power. In France it was not until both the Chamber of Deputies and the various French cabinets had sapped government prestige that France fell.

The U. S. A. in my opinion is a long way off from anything like this. Nevertheless, it might be a good idea for the gentlemen who come back to the halls of congress this week to do a little inventory—talking as to what decreases their most important stock-in-trade—public confidence.

WHAT'S WRONG?

Here are a couple of traits which they might think over:

1. The egocentric, cocksure idea that a congressman is above sin, plus the haste of his colleagues to gather around and protect him if someone on the outside raises the whisper of suspicion.

2. Being very vulnerable themselves, the alacrity with which most congressmen rush in to cast the first stone at somebody else.

In other words, before it can heave bricks at an ex-ballet dancer recommended by Civil Service for a government job, congress is going to have to clean out its Augean stables.

Probably nothing has decreased public esteem of congress more than the current travesty by which one of their own members has turned the investigational force of the powerful House of Representatives against the government agency which had the temerity to do its duty and recommend him to the Justice department for criminal prosecution.

The case is complicated and the public at first was slow to catch on. But the case has snow-balled. And now most of the American people fully understand the significance of the manner in which Congressman Eugene Cox of Georgia, a crony of Speaker Sam Rayburn, was able to take a $2,500 check for alleged illegal lobbying with the Federal Communications Commission, and then not only escape prosecution, but get his colleagues to vote $60,000

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

IN THE article yesterday we reviewed some of the developments in the field of aviation medicine, particularly selecting pilots on their mental qualifications.

There are, of course, many

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

other developments of aviation medicine which have literally made modern military aviation possible.

One of these, of course, is the oxygen supply. The modern military pilot is exposed to altitudes of 30,000 and 40,000 feet, to temperatures of 60 degrees below zero and to speeds of 500 miles an hour. He could not endure these without artificial methods of help.

Use of Oxygen

The use of oxygen is a fairly simple and obvious method of help, but immense improvements in apparatus and in knowledge of application have been made by research workers. At sea level the total atmospheric pressure is 760 mm. of mercury, the oxygen is approximately 21 percent, and oxygen pressure of the atmosphere, about 159 mm.

At 10,000 feet the oxygen pressure in the lungs has dropped to 66 mm. and at 20,000 feet it has dropped to 40 mm. Oxygen pressure is what keeps us alive. If it falls below a certain level we become first inefficient, then unconscious, and then we die. The aviator is taught to begin to use oxygen at 10,000 feet. About 15,000 feet it is absolutely necessary for efficiency. At 35,000 feet he is inefficient even when breathing 100 percent oxygen, and above 47,000 feet he will die with 100 percent oxygen unless he has a pressure cabin or suit.

A related problem is the effect of low barometric pressure per se. At 35,000 feet nitrogen is given off in the blood and gets into the muscles, causing the "bends." It is exactly the same as caisson disease in deep-sea divers: the diver coming from high pressure under sea, if brought up rapidly to the air at sea level, gets the bends for the same reason that the aviator does going from sea level to the low pressure of three miles in the air.

Experiments Constantly Tried

Up to the present there has been devised no practical plan or apparatus for the prevention of the bends in aviators. But experiments are constantly being performed and I am told that at least they can test aviators and find out which ones are likely to get the bends badly.

Visual tests for pilots are, of course, very rigid. One necessity for the pilot is ability to judge distance and this varies greatly with individuals. It requires nearly perfect binocular vision. Distance cannot be accurately judged with one eye.

The equilibrium tests—the Barany tests which have been in use for a long time—are principally valuable in teaching a pilot not to rely on his sense of equilibrium. In blind flying the pilot must disregard his sensations and rely on his instruments.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

O. H. S.—Is olive oil beneficial in healing or curing stomach or intestinal ulcers? Is the absence of pain in the stomach evidence that ulcers no longer exist?

Answer: Olive oil is soothing for ulcer, and for that purpose is often used. It is not preventive. Absence of pain indicates that the ulcer is not active, but ulcers notoriously tend to flare up from time to time.

A. B.—Do girls grow after the age of 17? What foods aid the growth of the body?

Answer: Very little, if any, growth usually occurs after the age of 17. No particular foods aid body growth.

SYNOPSIS

ADAM NORTH, young bachelor who recently converted an old Linville buggy factory into a war plant, with comes a "fill-in" stand-by for the town's party givers, among them being:

SUSAN POTTER, whose husband, Bill, has lately been breaking evening dates to "negotiate" a real estate deal with ALICIA CARTER, a witty flirtatious widow, Adam, unknowingly, is loved by her secretary.

RUTH MOOREHOUSE, who at present is having difficulty dissuading the affections of

JACK VINTON, a mechanic in the plant, Adam, being aware of Ruth's feelings, is just becoming intrigued with

BRENDA LEIGH, who is now enjoying an extended vacation in Linville, which she left several years ago, to launch a journalistic career in New York City.

YESTERDAY: Susan's new attention to her appearance and acceptance of a dietitian's job in Adam's factory brought about a change of heart with Husband Bill, who decides to wind up the Alicia Carter real estate deal in short order. Upon arriving home that night, she suddenly warmed heart gets a chilling from Susan when she states she is going out for the evening. Mrs. Platt, one of Linville's social leaders, is producing an amateur play, and Susan is going over to help.

CHAPTER TEN
THAT EVENING, while Bill studied blueprints of small cottages, and while Susan and Brenda made plans with Mrs. Platt, Jack Vinton and Ruth Moorehouse went for a ride. They changed their minds about going to a movie.

"I've been shut up in the office all day," said Ruth. "I'd like to feel the wind against my face. That is, if you've got enough for a drive."

"I have enough to take us out the Vaughan highway," said Jack. "Anyway, enough to get us as far as a cottage I want to show you."

There, it's coming again, Ruth thought; Jack and his talk of marriage. He had told her about the cottage, describing it in glowing terms, and she knew he was going to talk now of how happy they would be in it when they were married and in peace had come once more.

Ruth said nothing and tried to relax. As Jack steered the car in and out of Linville's traffic, which was almost cosmopolitan in its dwellings, she let her thoughts dwell on many things. But mostly she thought of how she had always wanted a home of her own. Having been an orphan who'd been handed around from relative to relative until she had finished school and become capable of managing herself and her affairs, she had dreamed of being settled in a place she could call her own. And always before her had been the vision of a cottage like that in which Susan and Bill Potter lived. Colorful draperies, soft rugs, the right sort of pictures, and a sunroom, glass enclosed, in which breakfast could be served the year round—the glass said back for warm weather, and closed for cold.

Of course there had always been a husband to share that perfect cottage, a man who would love and cherish her. But try as she might, she hadn't been able, during the past two years, to visualize Jack Vinton as that husband. Again and again she had tried, but always the husband resembled Adam North. "I got my questionnaire late this afternoon," Jack said. "Gosh, but it's a complicated affair."

Ruth looked at him, and suddenly felt fear. How awful for Jack, and thousands of young men like him, so full of health and promise, to be turned into what some people called cannon fodder. And yet, she further thought, she supposed it was as it should be. People had to fight to protect what was near and dear, and she knew that the American way of life was just that. There were many things wrong, maybe, but not so many things wrong with democracies as with some other forms of government. She'd heard Adam discuss it in terms like that, and they had stuck. And yet it was tragic to think that maybe men like Jack, and Peter Platt, and those other Linville boys who were now in the service might be killed or maimed. Certainly there must be something terribly wrong somewhere, when wars kept on happening, even though the world was supposed to have advanced far along the road toward being completely civilized.

She remembered something else Adam had said. The words came back to her even as Jack chatted about his questionnaire and the cottage. "We have gone back to a sort of mechanized primitiveness," Adam had said one day in the office, when he seemed low and discouraged about several matters. "Back in the Stone Age men used big sticks," he had added, "but now we use monsters called tanks, and outrageous birds called bombers."

"Here we are!" said Jack. He brought the car to a stop before a white picket gate. "Isn't it a beauty?"

"Yes," said Ruth softly. "It is!" She sat looking at the fence, the front yard and the cottage. It was small and neat and homey. "I love it," she added.

"Come on," Jack urged, jumping up. "Let's go have a look." He helped Ruth. "Sorry I didn't get the key, but we can look in the windows and explore the acre of land that goes with it."

This they did. The living room was square, with a wide fireplace, and bookshelves built low and generous on either side of the wide mantel. The moonlight was bright, and it did its best to help them, pouring silver into the rooms and reaching even to the farthest corners. They looked into the other rooms, also—and stood for some time beside a small, glass-enclosed porch on the south side of the cottage. Ruth caught her breath when she saw this, for it was as though her dream cottage had suddenly materialized right there before her eyes and nose and face, as her old Aunt Carrie had had a habit of saying.

"Plenty of room in the living room for all my books on engineering and tool-making," said Jack. "And plenty of room here for us to sit and read the Sunday papers."

He stepped closer to Ruth, slipped his arm about her slender waist. "Can't you just see Jack, Junior,

"All vegetables and no flowers?" said Ruth.

"Oh, flowers, too—definitely. Only I think most of them should be in the front yard, not back here." He pointed to a sheltered spot and said, "That's where we'll have a glass-covered shed for raising winter-time tomatoes and cucumbers."

It was late when they turned to go home. Jack took Ruth in his arms and kissed her as they stood beside the car.

"Darling," he said, his voice husky. "You do love me a little, don't you?"

Ruth kissed him back, trying with all her being to make herself feel that he was really the man for her. "I'm terribly fond of you, Jack," she said, "but—"

"Damn it all, Ruth!" Jack said, with a touch of annoyance. "I don't want you to be fond of me. One can be fond of chocolate cake, or root beer, or an old maid aunt. Love's what I want from you."

"I know, Jack. I'm trying—honestly I am."

"Good girl," Jack said softly. (To Be Continued)

Miss Zora Peters And Ralph McCain Married

Ashville Couple Exchange Vows at Church

At a candle-light ceremony performed in the St. Paul Lutheran church, near Ashville, September 11, Miss Zora Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie M. Peters of Ashville, exchanged marriage vows with Ralph McCain, son of Mr. and Mrs. David McCain also of Ashville. The Rev. E. H. Winterhoff officiated, using the double ring service.

Baskets of white gladioli and white candles in seven-branched candelabra high-lighted the altar which was banked with fern. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of white tulle, and carried a long train. A halo of shirred net held in place her finger-tip veil of illusion. She carried a white prayer book with white rose buds on the cover. Her only jewelry was a sapphire bracelet, gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Winona Peters attended her sister as maid of honor. Her frock was of aqua taffeta. Miss Mary Peters in blue taffeta and Miss Hazel Peters in rose taffeta served as bridesmaids for their sister. The attendants carried bouquets of roses and delphinium and wore tiny sprays of roses in their hair. Each wore a heart-shaped locket, gifts of the bride.

James Pickering of Pataskala served Mr. McCain as best man. The ushers were Private First Class Ernest Winterhoff and Howard Reid.

Preceding the ceremony, one-half hour of organ music was played by Miss Marjorie Peters, sister of the bride. Her dress was of peach marquiset over taffeta and she wore a corsage of roses and delphinium with a matching spray in her hair. Her gift from the bride was a single strand pearl necklace.

Following the wedding, 50 guests were entertained at a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Peters received in a dress of green crepe with which she wore black accessories. Mrs. McCain, mother of the bridegroom, was attired in black crepe with white trim and used black accessories. Their corsages were of white carnations.

The former Miss Peters is a graduate of Walnut township high school and attended Capital university business college. She has been employed at the Ohio Farm Bureau, Columbus.

Mr. McCain, also a Walnut township graduate, is employed by the Barney-Cheney Engineering Corporation, Columbus.

Before the couple left for a short wedding trip, the bride changed to a frock of rose wool with which she wore brown accessories and a corsage of white roses and carnations.

Monday Club
Miss Margaret Rooney, new president of the Monday club, accepted the gavel Monday at the first meeting of the club for the 1943-44 season. About 50 members attended the session in the club room, Memorial hall.

In the absence of Mrs. Howard (Dewell) Stevenson, outgoing president, Mrs. Percy May, program chairman, presided. After group singing of "America, the Beautiful," Mrs. May conducted a short business session and received Mrs. Barton Deming's report as treasurer. Miss Rooney gave her report of the use of the student aid fund, $44 being spent last year in aiding a Circleville high school girl.

Mrs. May presented Miss Rooney as new president. In a brief talk, the new officer recalled that the club had been organized 53 years ago and expressed her hopes for the club's success during the coming year. After reading the listing of her standing committees, Miss Rooney turned the session to Miss Carrie Johnson of the program committee who briefly outlined the plan of the year's study. Miss Johnson presented Mrs. Tom Renick, whose subject for discussion was "Lenin, and the Russian Revolution."

Mrs. Renick described Lenin as a plump little man with a high forehead, a snub nose, and bald head, whose tremendous will power and boundless energy so dominated the Bolsheviks that he might well have said, "I am the Party." Born in Simbirsk, now called Leningrad, in 1870, he was the son of a district inspector of schools whose family descended from a stock of impoverished nobles, according to Mrs. Renick's interesting paper. After spending 54 years trying to rescue 140 million people from

Ashville Couple
Exchange Vows
at Church

SOCIAL CALENDAR

At a candle-light ceremony performed in the St. Paul Lutheran church, near Ashville, September 11, Miss Zora Peters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie M. Peters of Ashville, exchanged marriage vows with Ralph McCain, son of Mr. and Mrs. David McCain also of Ashville. The Rev. E. H. E. Winterhoff officiated, using the double ring service.

Baskets of white gladioli and white candles in seven-branch candelabra high-lighted the altar which was banked with fern. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of white bridal satin, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, long sleeves finishing in points at the hands and a full skirt sweeping into a long train. A halo of shirred net held in place her finger-tip veil of illusion. She carried a white prayer book with white rose buds on the cover. Her only jewelry was a sapphire bracelet, gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Winona Peters attended her sister as maid of honor. Her frock was of aqua taffeta. Miss Mary Peters in blue taffeta and Miss Hazel Peters in rose taffeta served as bridesmaids for their sister. The attendants carried bouquets of roses and delphinium and wore tiny sprays of roses in their hair. Each wore a heart-shaped locket, gifts of the bride.

James Pickering of Pataskala served Mr. McCain as best man. The ushers were Private First Class Ernest Winterhoff and Howard Reid.

Preceding the ceremony, one-half hour of organ music was played by Miss Marjorie Peters, sister of the bride. Her dress was of peach marquiset over taffeta and she wore a corsage of roses and delphinium with a matching spray in her hair. Her gift from the bride was a single strand pearl necklace.

Following the wedding, 50 guests were entertained at a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. Peters received in a dress of green crepe with which she wore black accessories. Mrs. McCain, mother of the bridegroom, was gowned in black crepe with white trim and used black accessories. Their corsages were of white carnations.

The former Miss Peters is a graduate of Walnut township high school and attended Capital university business college. She has been employed at the Ohio Farm Bureau, Columbus.

Mr. McCain, also a Walnut township graduate, is employed by the Barney-Cheney Engineering Corporation, Columbus.

Before the couple left for a short wedding trip, the bride changed to a frock of rose wool with which she wore brown accessories and a corsage of white roses and carnations.

Monday Club
Miss Margaret Rooney, new president of The Monday club, accepted the gavel Monday at the first meeting of the club for the 1943-44 season. About 50 members attended the session in the club room, Memorial hall.

In the absence of Mrs. Howard (Dorothy) Stevenson, outgoing president, Mrs. Percy May, program chairman, presided.

After group singing of "America, the Beautiful", Mrs. May conducted a short business session and received Mrs. Barton Deming's report as treasurer. Miss Rooney gave her report of the use of the student aid fund, $14 being spent last year in aiding a Circleville high school girl.

Mrs. May presented Miss Rooney as new president. In a brief talk, the new officer recalled that the club had been organized 53 years ago and expressed her hopes for the club's success during the coming year. After reading the listing of her standing committees, Miss Rooney turned the session to Miss Carrie Johnson of the program committee who briefly outlined the plan of the year's study. Miss Johnson presented Mrs. Tom Renick, whose subject for discussion was "Lenin, and the Russian Revolution."

Mrs. Renick described Lenin as a plump little man with a high forehead, a snub nose, and bald head, whose tremendous will power and boundless energy so dominated the Bolsheviks that he might well have said, "I am the Party." Born in Simbirsk, now called Leningrad, in 1870, he was the son of a district inspector of schools whose family descended from a stock of impoverished nobles, according to Mrs. Renick's interesting paper. After spending 54 years trying to rescue 140 million people from

Leahy Inherits Six Men, But May Lose His Stars

BY LEO FISCHER

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Sept. 14—Things are different at Notre Dame.

In other years, when your wandering reporter entered the practice area bordered by that famous green fence, he would see football players swarming all over the place. Half a dozen varsity coaches would be ranging up and down the field, each surrounded by a group of twenty or thirty men. Over in another section, perhaps 150 ambitious freshmen would be working under the watchful eye of another contingent of coaches.

GOTHAMITES GO FOR YANKS AT ODDS OF 7-5

By John Cashman

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 — The New York Yankees, masters of the American League by 11 1/2 games, are today babbling happily and openly about the World Series. Few teams have ever enjoyed the advantages now held by the Yankees, who need only ten games of a scheduled twenty to clinch the pennant.

The Yankees are contented, most of all, with the decision to play the first three games of the World Series at home, starting Tuesday, October 5. This is a concession which has not been enjoyed by any club since the Yankees met the New York Giants for a full series in the Polo Grounds 21 years ago.

The league leaders also like the idea of having a two-day rest in shifting to St. Louis. Spurgeon (Spud) Chandler, who will start the first series game, will have the benefit of that little vacation in pitching the fourth game in St. Louis. That old-debille money also prods a couple of horns into the picture. That fourth game will come on a Sunday, (October 10). The players share in only the first four games, as you know, and that Sunday crowd in St. Louis ought to swell the swag to near-record proportions.

Best of all, from the standpoint of Yankee fans, the odds are now favoring the New Yorkers at 7 to 5. Men reputedly fast with a dollar claim that the odds will go to 8 to 5 before the men take to the field in the initial series conflict, in view of whatever advantage the Yankees might have in playing the first three games at home.

BACHMAN TAKES GRID REINS OF CAMP GRANT 11

CAMP GRANT, Ill., Sept. 14—Charles W. Bachman, head football coach at Michigan State College since 1933, took over the post of civilian head coach at Camp Grant today and put the Warriors through their paces.

Bachman's appointment was announced by Lieut. Col. Frank Bush, special service officer at Camp Grant, who said the Spartan coach had been granted a leave of absence from Michigan State. No contract was signed, the deal being made by verbal agreement.

Michigan State gave up football this season because of a manpower shortage.

The Warriors' next foe is Michigan which will invade Camp Grant Saturday. The Wolverines are regarded as potentially one of the nation's strongest college teams this year.

In taking over his new post, Bachman sent the Warriors through dummy and signal drills and installed an offense patterned after the Notre Dame balanced line and shifting backfield. The Warriors opened their season at Champaign, Ill., last Saturday with a 23 to 0 victory over Illinois.

Bachman, a guard and fullback at Notre Dame in 1914-16 and a standout performer with the strong Great Lakes team of 1918, has been coaching since the first World War, holding posts at De Pauw, Northwestern, Kansas State and Florida before going to the Spartans.

REVOLTA AND FOULIS TANGLE FOR GOLF CASH

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Sept. 14—Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., and Jim Foulis of Ruth Lake, Ill., tee off today at the Glen Flora Country Club in an 18-hole play-off for the Illinois P. G. A. crown.

Revolta who has captured the title five times in the last seven starts had a 54-hole score of 219. His rounds were 73-73-73. Foulis natched the defending champion's pace with 75-72-72.

The champion needed only a par three on the last hole of the third round to win his sixth title, but was wide of the green with his iron, then pitched 15 feet past the cup and took two putts for a bogey four, to send the match into a stalemate.

HALF OF EAST'S GRIDDERS QUIT PLAY THIS YEAR

By Lewis Burton
NEW YORK, Sept. 14—Army, Dartmouth and Navy are calculated to be the principal powerhouses on eastern football fields this season. Colgate, too, appears headed for high places. Yale, Penn, and Cornell form a second division in the Ivy league and a third group, right at their heels, includes Princeton, Columbia and Brown.

Does this sound as if marked changes have taken place in intercollegiate gridiron hereabouts? Not much. But seven of the 30 institutions in the football association operating through the central office run by Commissioner Asa Bushnell have hung up the cleats — Fordham, Georgetown, Duquesne, Manhattan, Syracuse, Boston University and — "informally" — Harvard.

Of the other 30 or so operating in the East, about half have given up the ghost. New York City is due to feel the change in about the proportion that holds for the entire section, which has, incidentally, done a better job of keeping football alive than almost all other areas.

Fordham's decision has left Gotham's ball-parks virtually bare. There is no Manhattan around to fill in. Columbia will occupy an uncontested place of prominence on the local front, with the particular exception of November 6, when Army and Notre Dame will have their annual do-to at the Yankee stadium. This year it figures to be bigger than ever, if possible. City College and Brooklyn College are going along with the game, again, approximating last year's standards.

TERRANOVA ON TOP
NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 14 — Phil Terranova, world's featherweight boxing champion, today held a 10-round decision over Juan Villalba, featherweight and lightweight champion of Cuba and Spain, in a non-title bout. Terranova fouled the 21-year-old Villalba in the sixth round of last night's bout but came through to win the decision.

Leahy Inherits Six Men, But May Lose His Stars

BY LEO FISCHER

NOTRE DAME, Ind., Sept. 14—Things are different at Notre Dame.

In other years, when your wandering reporter entered the practice area bordered by that famous green fence, he would see football players swarming all over the place. Half a dozen varsity coaches would be ranging up and down the field, each surrounded by a group of twenty or thirty men. Over in another section, perhaps 150 ambitious freshmen would be working under

GOTHAMITES GO FOR YANKS AT ODDS OF 7-5

By John Cashman

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 — The New York Yankees, masters of the American League by 11 1/2 games, are today babbling happily and openly about the World Series.

Few teams have ever enjoyed the advantages now held by the Yankees, who need only ten games of a scheduled twenty to clinch the pennant.

The Yankees are contented, most of all, with the decision to play the first three games of the World Series at home, starting Tuesday, October 5. This is a concession which has not been enjoyed by any club since the Yankees met the New York Giants for a full series in the Polo Grounds 21 years ago.

The league leaders also like the idea of having a two-day rest in shifting to St. Louis. Spurgeon (Spud) Chandler, who will start the first series game, will have the benefit of that little vacation in pitching the fourth game in St. Louis. That of-debail money also prods a couple of horns into the picture. That fourth game will come on a Sunday, (October 10). The players share in only the first four games, as you know, and that Sunday crowd in St. Louis ought to swell the swag to near-record proportions.

Best of all, from the standpoint of Yankee fans, the odds are now favoring the New Yorkers at 7 to 5. Men reputedly fast with a dollar claim that the odds will go to 8 to 5 before the men take to the field in the initial series conflict, in view of whatever advantage the Yankees might have in playing the first three games at home.

BACHMAN TAKES GRID REINS OF CAMP GRANT 11

CAMP GRANT, Ill., Sept. 14—Charles W. Bachman, head football coach at Michigan State College since 1933, took over the post of civilian head coach at Camp Grant today and put the Warriors through their paces.

Bachman's appointment was announced by Lieut. Col. Frank Bush, special service officer at Camp Grant, who said the Spartan coach had been granted a leave of absence from Michigan State. No contract was signed, the deal being made by verbal agreement.

Michigan State gave up football this season because of a manpower shortage.

The Warriors' next foe is Michigan which will invade Camp Grant Saturday. The Wolverines are regarded as potentially one of the nation's strongest college teams this year.

In taking over his new post, Bachman sent the Warriors through dummy and signal drills and installed an offense patterned after the Notre Dame balanced line and shifting backfield. The Warriors opened their season at Champaign, Ill., last Saturday with a 23 to 0 victory over Illinois.

Bachman, a guard and fullback at Notre Dame in 1914-16 and a standout performer with the strong Great Lakes team of 1918, has been coaching since the first World War, holding posts at De Pauw, Northwestern, Kansas State and Florida before going to the Spartans.

REVOLTA AND FOULIS TANGLE FOR GOLF CASH

WAUKEGAN, Ill., Sept. 14—Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., and Jim Foulis of Ruth Lake, Ill., tee off today at the Glen Flora Country Club in an 18-hole playoff for the Illinois P. G. A. crown.

Revolta who has captured the title five times in the last seven years had a 54-hole score of 219. His rounds were 73-73-73. Foulis matched the defending champion's pace with 75-72-72.

The champion needed only a par three on the last hole of the third round to win his sixth title, but was wide of the green with his iron, then pitched 15 feet past the cup and took two putts for a bogey four, to send the match into a stalemate.

the watchful eye of another contingent of coaches.

Today? Well, brother, that green fence is still around, but there the similarity stops. There are no freshmen—for this year they can play varsity football—and altogether the entire squad looks about as large as one of those units which used to be turned over to the assistant coaches.

Quiet-spoken, smiling Frank Leahy seemed to be all over the field, but we caught up with him long enough to ask two questions. The first:

"Frank, is it true about so many standout stars from other schools falling in your lap?"

The coach shook his head. He replied:

"At last count, there were six men on my roster who had playing experience at other schools and two of them are doubtful. They are Verlie Abrams, a guard from Missouri; Ray Davis, a fine halfback from Idaho; Mark Todorovich, an end from Washington U. of St. Louis and Vic Kulbitski, John Perko and Ed Trumper from Minnesota."

So much for that. Now for question No. 2:

"Is it true, according to reports, that you expect to lose four games?"

Leahy smiled again, said he: "I've been misquoted. I think I'll lose five games—but in the same breath, I can tell you I'm hopeful we will have a very successful season. We'll play our schedule game by game and take them as they come. Naturally we hope we'll win them all. Maybe we will. Maybe we won't. Michigan, Army, Navy, Northwestern are pretty tough customers. When you have teams like that on your schedule, it's silly to predict anything except a tough fight."

Leahy's situation is further complicated by the fact that he may lose much of his talent in mid-season. Practically all of his Notre Dame holdovers are in Navy and Marine units and are scheduled to depart in November. Prominent among them is Angelo Bertelli, slated to pass and kick in the T-formation which Leahy plans to use.

Around Gary they say Rykovich was a better high school player than either Tommy Harmon or Tom Kuza and we haven't heard anything along the route to change that opinion. He was terrific as a freshman at Illinois last season and is likely to be a sensation this fall. Lujack is a fine passer, a consistent punter and a good defense man and is slated to replace Bertelli when Angelo answers Uncle Sam's call.

PIRATES NAME FRISCH AGAIN AS TEAM BOSS

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 14—Frankie Frisch began his fourth year as manager of the fourth-place Pittsburgh Pirates today.

President William E. Benawanger, who announced the renewal of Frisch's contract, said:

"Frisch has done all that could have been expected of him or any other manager under the conditions that existed during the 1942 season, and that in all fairness he is entitled to a continuation of his contract."

MAROTTI TO CARDS
CHICAGO, Sept. 14—Charles Bidwell, owner of the Chicago Cardinals football team, announced today the purchase of Louis Marotti, guard from the New York Giants, in a straight cash deal. Marotti formerly played with the University of Toledo.

NINE POSITIONS APPEAR SET ON TIGER VARSITY

One Halfback And Fullback
Spot Questionable;
Job Scramble On

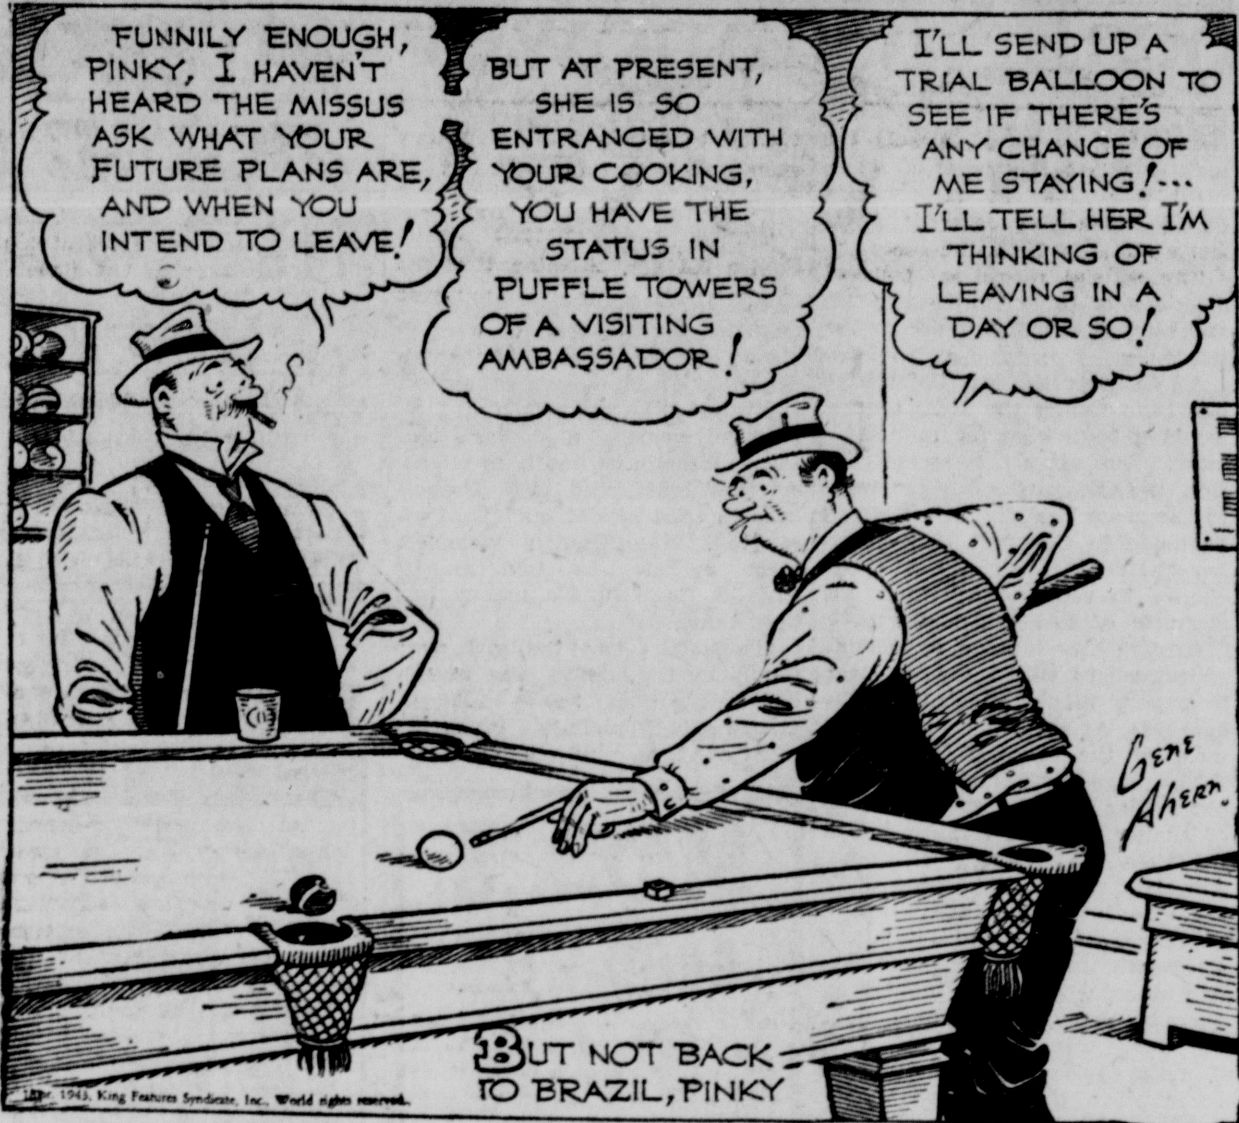

Scramble for positions in the starting lineup of Coach Roy M. Black's 1943 Circleville high varsity has narrowed down during the last few practices until only two major contests appear to exist at this time. The opening game is only 10 days away, the Tigers traveling to Hillsboro September 24 to meet the usually-strong Indian eleven.

Right now Coach Black could inform interested persons that Dave Mader and Jim Dade will probably hold down the ends for the first encounter, and that Howard Moore and Bob Lovensheimer will be at tackles. The coach is rightfully proud of his pair of guards, Paul Moorehead and Jim Wells, and he is satisfied with his center, Captain Bob Valentine.

However, line replacements worry the Tiger mentor. The second string line hasn't shown much to date, but the youthful line aspirants have suffered from lack of experience. Most of the Tiger

HOAGY CARMICHAEL

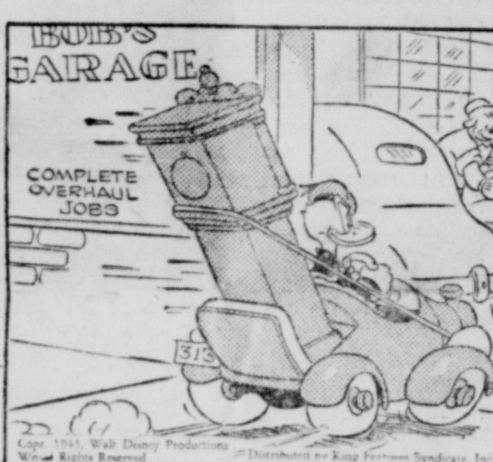

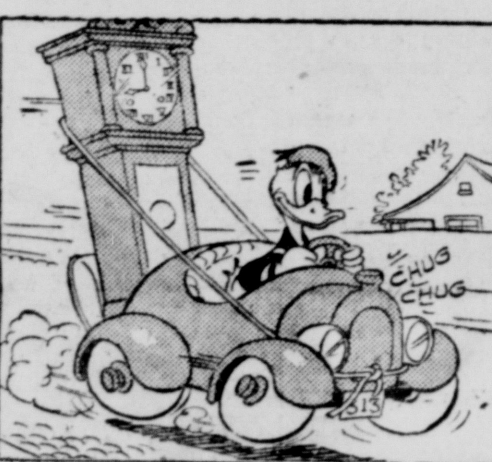

Hoagy Carmichael, the syno-pating composer, and originator of boogie woogie, who beats out his rhythms on the piano or by his inimitable whistling and sing-ing, will play some of his own crea-tions as the guest conductor of Barry Wood's "Million Dollar Band" over NBC Saturday at 10 p. m.

Carmichael is considered one of the top ranking five songwriters in the country and has written over 300 well-known tunes including seven smash hits during the last year. Many of his songs have be-come semi-classics in American music. Such as "Star Dust," "Lazy Bones," and "Georgia On My Mind." Much of Carmichael's music has been written for motion pictures, and he has also written scenarios and appeared in films.

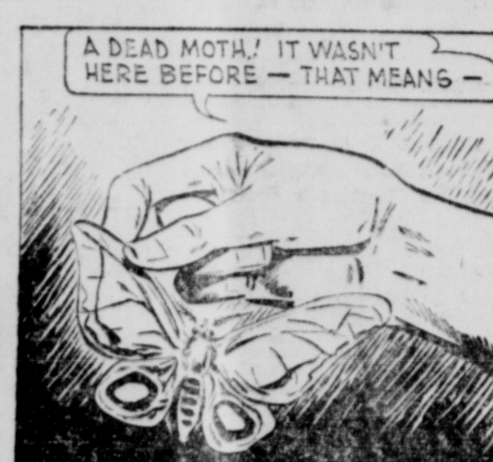

"MAYOR OF THE TOWN"

Mayors and city officials of more than a score of cities will turn radio actors and be heard on "The Mayor of the Town" with Lionel Barrymore on Wednesday at 9 p. m. over station WBNS. Be-cause there is a greater need than ever to encourage American housewives to turn in their waste household "ots, Barrymore's spon-sor decided to devote the "tire "Mayor of the Town" program of September 15 to this important work, and the dramatization will deal with fat salvage. Barrymore will make a strong plea as the Mayor of Springfield for intensifi-cation of efforts and mayors and city officials will be cut in in the heart of the program from their various cities. Mayors and officials from these cities will be heard in their own communities: Hartford, Conn.; Dallas, Texas; Atlanta, Ga.; Baltimore, Md.; Des Moines, Ia.; Detroit, Mich.; Washington, D. C.; Cleveland, O.; St. Louis, Mo.; New Orleans, La.; Richmond, Va.; Bir-mingham, Ala.; Philadelphia, Pa.; Syracuse, N. Y.; Indianapolis.

"STAGE DOOR CANTREEN"

With Gertrude Lawrence, Walter O'Keefe, Frank Parker, and Governor Leverett P. Sal-ton-stall of Massachusetts, as fea-tured guests, the "Stage Door Can-treen" radio series broadcasts ce-re-monies opening the Boston Stage Door Canteen, newest link in a nationwide chain of canteens for service men, under American Theatre Wing sponsorship, on Thursday at 9:30 p. m., over sta-tion WBNS. Miss Lawrence, O'Keefe and Gov. Saltonstall will be heard from New York, while Park-er airs from Boston, while Lytle, and the Canteen orchestra conducted by Raymond Paige. The Boston Canteen, in common with others throughout the country, is sup-ported largely by funds paid to the American Theatre Wing by the sponsors of the radio series.

BRIEF RADIO NOTES

Carl Brisson, "the older girls' Frank Sinatra," currently starring at the Versailles in New York, takes the guest star spotlight when "The Chamber Music So-ciety of Lower Basin Street" con-venes on Sunday, September 19, at 9:15 p. m., over the Blue network. "Dr." Milton J. Cross, commenta-ry-hecker, and Paul Lavalley's Soap Symphony are permanent members of the "Basin Street" company.

Expect Rosalind Russell to be one of the bustier films stars be-fore the mike this season. She is already signed for about half a dozen guest shots including "Screen Guild Players" on which she'll do "My Sister Ellen."

Grisly, yet fascinating, is "Death Took a Picture," the story to be related by Isabel Manning Hewson on her September 25 "Morning Market Basket" broadcast on the Blue chain. It concerns the most amazing under-water films ever taken and the incredible reason why they could never be used.

It's June in September for mem-bers of Horace Heidt's NBC "Treasure Chest" troupe. His trumpet, Jimmy Troutman, just married Mary Ann Mercer, the radio singer, and his writer and director, Dick Woolen has an-nounced his forthcoming marriage to a Tennessee gal.

Draft Board Scraping Bottom Of Local Manpower Barrel

NEW LISTINGS EXPECTED FOR SOME DRAFTEES

All Childless Married Men Will Receive Calls To Fill October Quota

DADS MAY BE NEEDED

Deadline Near For Fathers To File For Position In Essential Industry

Following federal Selective Service orders to process every non-father available for induction into the armed services before ordering up any draft age dad, Pickaway county draft office is engaged in an inventory of the classifications and status of all its registrants. Only class not affected by the inventory will be the fourth registration, men of 45 years of age and over.

National Selective Service has ordered all boards to scrape the bottom of the manpower barrel again in search for available "non-dads," the local board announced Tuesday.

The inventory being taken at the present time is designed to see that every man without dependents is correctly classified.

During the 15-day inventory the board will suspend new classifications. Non-fathers who have been erroneously placed in occupational deferred classifications, or those in 4-F who are now qualified physically for army life are to be shifted to I-A, ready for induction.

Childless Men First

Selective Service headquarters has been informed that the October call will be divided into two sections. All available non-fathers will be called up regardless of board quotas. If the state's quota is not filled then fathers will be inducted to make up the deficiency. However, Pickaway county board has declared that no draft-age dads will be taken from this county before November.

Wednesday is the deadline for fathers of draft age to register with the U. S. Employment Service for a job in essential industry. So far only little activity has been noted by the Pickaway county office of the U. S. E. S. No figures were released concerning the number of men who have asked transfer to essential industry, but it was indicated the number is very small.

October Call Received

Pickaway county Selective Service board has already received a tentative call for October, but the official call and the date for the contingent to take physical examinations have not yet been received. The local board plans to take every available man, including the highest numbered registrants in the class which includes married men who have wives only as dependents.

In his directive to local boards concerning the inventory, Colonel Chester Goble, director of the Ohio draft office, declared:

"During these years the local boards have taken a large part in the mobilization of the greatest armed forces in the history of our nation, and a substantial part in making possible record production of all war material.

"With the removal of the ban on the drafting of fathers effective October 1, every step to be taken by the selective service system in the coming months must be based on an accurate knowledge of the classification and status of every registrant.

"This inventory, when completed, will provide both state and national headquarters with current information on which to base the allocation of future calls, and future accounting of classification."

The responsibility for completion of each local board inventory has been given to the chairman, who will be assisted by the members and board clerks. Since September

OPA STRIVES TO WIDEN USE OF RIDE SHARING JOHN W. GREENO DIES FOLLOWING LONG SICKNESS

OPA officials have asked the Pickaway county War Price and Rationing board and other boards throughout the state to tighten up on the issuance of supplemental gasoline rations in the renewal of B and C rations, declaring that "When you ride alone you ride with Hitler." This statement is used by the OPA in an effort to boost its share the ride program.

Every person who was given extra gas rations beyond those provided in his basic A rations is obliged to have at least three riders besides the driver if he uses his car in going to and from his work. If he or she works in a plant employing more than 100 people and does not have the full complement of riders, the plant transportation chairman must certify to the fact that riders are not available.

Persons using their private automobiles for going to and from their work have been able to get sufficient gas and tires for their cars up to date but due to the critical gasoline and rubber situation those who get extra rations and do not share the ride are liable to have their gasoline rations suspended by their local ration board.

TAXPAYERS' MONEY

Not only did he get $60,000 of the taxpayers' money (in addition to the salaries of six Cox relatives on the public payroll) but he also got himself appointed chairman of the committee to "persecute" the FCC. As such, he and his colleagues have set a new high-water mark for unfair and un-American investigational practices. Here is the latest.

All Summer Cox's committee has been holding hearings at which its side of the story has been presented. The FCC's story has been barred. There has been no chance of rebutting the various Cox charges. Congressional committees are supposed to hear both sides, but not Cox's committee.

Furthermore, Committee Counsel Eugene Garey has now gone to the extent of striking from the record various reports or questions asked by him which put the FCC in a favorable light.

Three years ago, when testifying before the Attorney General's Committee on Administrative Procedure, Garey complained bitterly that SEC officials told "the stenographer what to put in the record and what not to put in the record" at public hearings. There-complete.

But recently the shoe has been put on the other foot. For instance Garey accused the FCC of "doctoring" a memo on Fascist activities which had been submitted to the Office of Censorship. FCC Counsel Nathan David denied the charge and gave an explanation which made Garey look absurd.

"I ask that Mr. David's words be physically stricken from the record," said Garey, looking as if he wished he had never brought the matter up. Chairman Cox immediately agreed.

ONE-SIDED RECORD

So now the official transcript does not show the remarks of

I've a Load off My Mind

NOW I'M PROTECTED ALL WAYS BY HOOSIER CASUALTY SO I WON'T LOSE MY RIGHT TO DRIVE UNDER THE NEW OHIO MOTOR VEHICLE FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY LAW

"At first I was worried how I could comply with this NEW motor vehicle law—but my worries vanished when a HOOSIER Casualty representative showed me how easily, safely and economically I could be protected against costly judgments and attachments, and against losing my driver's license for 5 years—all simply by having an adequate automobile liability and property damage policy. Now it's fun to drive because I've avoided future regrets."

Garey, Cox or David, merely the notation: "At this point a statement was made by Mr. Nathan David which was ordered physically stricken from the record."

The official record is full of deletions of this kind—whenever anything is said favorable to the FCC.

All Summer the Cox Committee has been telling the FCC that it would get its turn for rebuttal—later. But after one recent session, the Committee dropped word to the press that its report would be made to Congress in September—without giving the FCC its chance to reply. Then on the strength of this one-sided report, Chairman Cox intends to ask his colleagues to vote more of the taxpayers' money to continue the hearing. At present he has spent most of the original $60,000.

The boys on Capitol Hill may not realize it, but this is the type of unfair un-Americanism which get them in wrong with the American people. The boys don't seem to know that they face a much more alert and intelligent electorate than a few years ago. And upon whether or not they gang up to vote their poker-playing cronies Congressman Cox of Georgia another $60,000 will help to measure their all too scanty prestige with the folks back home.

EX-SOLDIER AND WOMAN DENY THEFT CHARGE

Pleas of innocence were entered Monday before Justice of the Peace B. T. Hedges when Ralph Timberlake, 26, and Irene Pennington, 23, of Columbus, appeared for hearing on charges of picking the pocket of William Daniels, also of Columbus. Both were returned to county jail when they were unable to furnish the $1,000 demanded of each.

Daniels filed charges before Squire Hedges, claiming that the couple took approximately $100 from his pockets after he went to sleep when his car stopped because its gasoline was exhausted. He said that he had picked up Timberlake, wearing a soldier's uniform although he had been released in August, and that Timberlake in turn picked up Miss Pennington. When Daniels awakened, after a ride, he told Sheriff Charles Radcliff, his money had been taken.

Timberlake and the girl were found in Chillicothe, the ex-soldier having about $40 in his pocket. He said Daniels had given the money to him.

Save. Serve and Conserve—by the simple process of proper burner adjustment

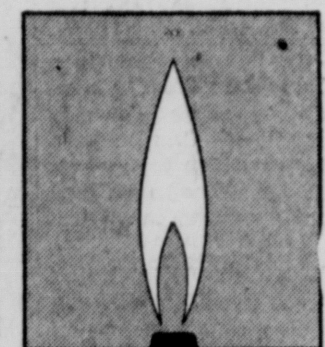

Correct adjustment of the burners on your gas appliances produces a clean flame with maximum heat on a minimum flow of gas. This efficiency in the use of the fuel not only saves you money, but also saves gas for the increased need of the war industries. In these times it is both thrifty and patriotic to avoid wasting gas. Dust or other dirt sucked into the mixer with the air will put a burner out of adjustment if allowed to accumulate. If an even blue flame is not secured after cleaning the complete burner assembly, good adjustment can be secured by following the simple instructions below.

NOT ENOUGH AIR
A lazy flame or one showing tinges of yellow denotes too much gas. Open the shutter on the mixer slightly.

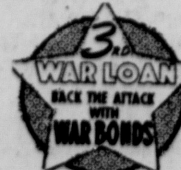

TOO MUCH AIR
A blue flame dancing above and off the burners denotes too much air. Close the shutter on the mixer slightly.

CORRECT FLAME
A clear blue flame seated on the burner, of definite shape and showing a lighter inner cone denotes proper mixture of gas and air.

With a little practice, most customers will find that they can make these simple adjustments themselves. A screw-driver is the only tool needed to loosen and tighten the set screw on the mixer. If difficulty is encountered, call your plumber or The Gas Company.

Furthermore, Committee Counsel Eugene Garey has now gone to the extent of striking from the record various reports or questions asked by him which put the FCC in a favorable light.

Three years ago, when testifying before the Attorney General's Committee on Administrative Procedure, Garey complained bitterly that SEC officials told "the stenographer what to put in the record and what not to put in the record" at public hearings. There, complete.

But recently the shoe has been put on the other foot. For instance Garey accused the FCC of "doctoring" a memo on Fascist activities which had been submitted to the Office of Censorship. FCC Counsel Nathan David denied the charge and gave an explanation which made Garey look absurd.

"I ask that Mr. David's words be physically stricken from the record," said Garey, looking as if he wished he had never brought the matter up. Chairman Cox immediately agreed.

Garey, Cox or David, merely the notation: "At this point a statement was made by Mr. Nathan David which was ordered physically stricken from the record."

The official record is full of deletions of this kind—whenever anything is said favorable to the FCC.

All Summer the Cox Committee has been telling the FCC that it would get its turn for rebuttal—later. But after one recent session, the Committee dropped word to the press that its report would be made to Congress in September—without giving the FCC its chance to reply. Then on the strength of this one-sided report, Chairman Cox intends to ask his colleagues to vote more of the taxpayers' money to continue the hearing. At present he has spent most of the original $60,000.

The boys on Capitol Hill may not realize it, but this is the type of unfair un-Americanism which get them in wrong with the American people. The boys don't seem to know that they face a much more alert and intelligent electorate than a few years ago. And upon whether or not they gang up to vote their poker-playing cronies Congressman Cox of Georgia another $60,000 will help to measure their all too scanty prestige with the folks back home.

EX-SOLDIER AND WOMAN DENY THEFT CHARGE

Pleas of innocence were entered Monday before Justice of the Peace B. T. Hedges when Ralph Timberlake, 26, and Irene Pennington, 23, of Columbus, appeared for hearing on charges of pickpocketing of William Daniels, also of Columbus. Both were released.

AT FIRST SIGN OF A COLD USE 666 666 TABLETS. SALVE. NOSE DROPS

turned to county jail when they were unable to furnish the $1,000 demanded of each.

Daniels filed charges before Squire Hedges, claiming that the couple took approximately $100 from his pockets after he went to sleep when his car stopped because its gasoline was exhausted. He said that he had picked up Timberlake, wearing a soldier's uniform although he had been released in August, and that Timberlake in turn picked up Miss Pennington. When Daniels awakened, after a ride, he told Sheriff Charles Radcliff, his money had been taken.

Timberlake and the girl were found in Chillicothe, the ex-soldier having about $40 in his pocket. He said Daniels had given the money to him.

SENSATIONAL NEW TYPE HEATER

COKE'S THE COAL! BURNS THE GASES!

WARM MORNING

SELF-FEED HEATER

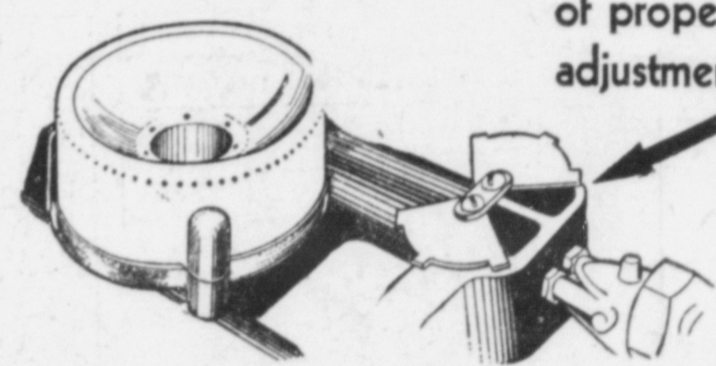

WARM MORNING is new in principle . . . new in heating results. Fuel magazine holds 100 lbs. of coal, which is poured in from top and feeds down automatically. One fueling heats all day, all night. Saves work. Heat easily controlled by air intakes both BELOW and ABOVE the fire. WARM MORNING is the only magazine-feed heater with fuel-saving Heat Booster, which lengthens fire travel, increases heat, reduces flue temperature and adds to safety. Come in and see the new WARM MORNING — the heater you'll want to own.

Save. Serve and Conserve-

by the simple process of proper burner adjustment

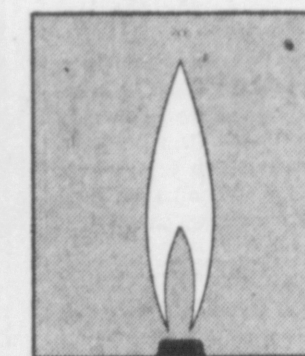

Correct adjustment of the burners on your gas appliances produces a clean flame with maximum heat on a minimum flow of gas. This efficiency in the use of the fuel not only saves you money, but also saves gas for the increased need of the war industries. In these times it is both thrifty and patriotic to avoid wasting gas. Dust or other dirt sucked into the mixer with the air will put a burner out of adjustment if allowed to accumulate. If an even blue flame is not secured after cleaning the complete burner assembly, good adjustment can be secured by following the simple instructions below.

NOT ENOUGH AIR
A lazy flame or one showing tinges of yellow denotes too much gas. Open the shutter on the mixer slightly.

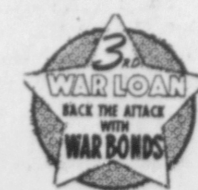

TOO MUCH AIR
A blue flame dancing above and off the burners denotes too much air. Close the shutter on the mixer slightly.

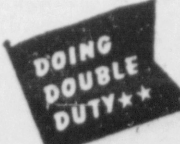

CORRECT FLAME
A clear blue flame seated on the burner, of definite shape and showing a lighter inner cone denotes proper mixture of gas and air.

With a little practice, most customers will find that they can make these simple adjustments themselves. A screw-driver is the only tool needed to loosen and tighten the set screw on the mixer. If difficulty is encountered, call your plumber or The Gas Company.
